Everyone has different needs, so the amount of support we offer varies – some people have 24 hour support, others may need only a few hours a day. We may provide the support in a property owned by others, or act as the landlord. Within supported living schemes we provide a highly personalised service, with each individual's service based on their views, needs and preferences. We support people to manage their tenancies, access the community and develop independent living skills. Positive Behaviour Support Improving quality of life and reducing behaviour that challenges About 1 person in 8 with a learning disability displays challenging behaviour which may lead to injuries, psychotropic medication and disruption to family life, employment and education. At Dimensions we use Positive Behaviour Support to help people improve their quality of life, reduce challenging behaviour, and eliminate restraint as a management strategy. Our Behaviour Support team focuses on developing person-centred strategies that help people to lead full lives in the community and avoid more costly interventions. Our approach combines years of experience with best practice in the field, including NICE guidance and the PBS Competence Framework |

| Ashford; South Kent Coastal - and South Kent Coast 5; West Kent Rural East | Ashford; South Kent Coastal - and South Kent Coast 5; West Kent Rural East - expansion on current areas already served. | Keeping independence meaningful is CNCA's mantra and raison d'être. You'll agree it's not enough to simply provide soulless, meaningless, caring-by-numbers in clients' homes. As vulnerable adults with often-complex needs, they each deserve better; as do the staff that serve them. What's more, it can become all too easy to see a care client solely in terms of their condition, and forget the person behind it. Quality of care embraces much more than simply addressing the technical needs of clients. It's about being a part of their social circle and providing an enhanced quality of life. And it's the same with carers – all too often caring becomes a stopover, rather than a rewarding career option in its own right. To tackle this, we have our own qualified assessor to provide a recognised and consistent level of competence for new carers, and ongoing learning, development and support for experienced carers in the field. Moreover, to create a safe, enriching and fulfilling environment for clients and carers alike, we empower our staff, through training, consistent co-ordination, and a supportive working and learning ethic, to take pride in all they do. This means staff turnover is reduced, and clients receive a consistent level of enhanced service because we provide the same good-natured carers to maximise their sense of safety, wellbeing and overall satisfaction. Which all serves to keep adult independence meaningful |
